PREFACE

All Orientalists and Indologists are familiar with Dr. Aufrecht's monumental work—The Catalogus Catalogorum—as an indispensable piece of apparatus for Oriental research. Since 1903, thirty-four years ago, when Dr. Aufrecht completed his Catalogus Catalogorum, many important collections of Sanskrit manuscripts within and outside India have come to the notice of scholars and several volumes of catalogues, giving reliable information regarding thousands of Sanskrit manuscripts, have become available in Madras, Bengal, Lahore, Bombay, Baroda, Dacca, Benares, Travancore, Central Provinces and Berar, Mysore and other centres. Highly valuable as are the materials contained in Dr. Aufrecht's great work, it is now found to be defective and incomplete, chiefly in view of the vast accession to the stock of knowledge about the literary treasures in Sanskrit, that has been made available within the last thirty-four years subsequent to the completion of Dr. Aufrecht's work. The late Dr. A. C. Woolner, as Vice-Chancellor of the Punjab University, brought the need for supplementing Dr. Aufrecht's work to the notice of the Madras University, which, in view of the large number of Sanskrit manuscripts in South India, decided to undertake the preparation and publication of a complete and up-to-date New Catalogus Catalogorum of Sanskrit Manuscripts, utilising the invaluable work already done by Dr. Aufrecht as the basis and containing references to all known Sanskrit manuscripts. The main lines on which this work is carried on are indicated below :—

1. Checking and verification of the entries in the Catalogus Catalogorum of Dr. Aufrecht.
2. Introduction of fresh entries of the additional manuscripts of the works noticed by Aufrecht and of additional information about authors noticed by him.
3. Dealing with the additional works and their authors in the manuscripts collected within and outside India within the last thirty-four years.
4. Entering the dates and other important items of information in brief, of works and authors, as far as possible.
5. Incorporation of works and authors known through citations alone, with appropriate references, as far as possible.

The work was started in the last week of November 1935. At this stage, it is considered profitable to issue a provisional fasciculus of the New Catalogus Catalogorum, for circulation among scholars for favour of suggestions. All the scholars who are interested in the progress of this work are now requested to communicate their suggestions to the Editor-in-Chief, New Catalogus Catalogorum, New University Buildings, Chepauk, Triplicane P.O., Madras.

In view of the fact that Dr. Aufrecht's Catalogus Catalogorum has been in wide use for the past thirty-four years and scholars have become accustomed to it very much, it was considered advisable not to effect any drastic changes in the methodology adopted by Dr. Aufrecht. The creation of a new set of abbreviations for the catalogues used by Aufrecht was suggested by some scholars; but this has not been done, lest it might add to the trouble of scholars in becoming familiar with the New Catalogus Catalogorum and its references.

Another important suggestion was about restricting the scope of the New Catalogus Catalogorum to Hindu Literature in Sanskrit, as Dr. Aufrecht did, strictly excluding Prākṛt and Pāli, and Jain and Buddhistic Literatures. The omission of Jain Literature was emphasised in view of the fact that Prof. H. D. Velankar was preparing for the Bhandarkar Oriental Research Institute, Poona, a separate Catalogus Catalogorum of Jain works and authors. As at present planned, it is proposed to include in the New Catalogus Catalogorum, all such literature, Jain or Buddhistic, in Sanskrit or Prākṛt, as would facilitate one's view of ancient Indian cultural developments on the Sanskrit side becoming well-rounded and as would prevent its becoming lop-sided. At the same time, sufficient care is taken to avoid needless duplication of work.

The suggestion for separating works from authors has not been adopted, since it would be convenient not to increase the number of volumes to be consulted. The chief purpose of a Catalogus Catalogorum is to consolidate in one book of reference, all the references available in a whole library of catalogues. Since a Catalogus Catalogorum is mainly an index to the catalogues themselves, too many details about the manuscripts have not been added under the names. Only important or original information is added; and it will be seen even from this provisional fasciculus that such additions, in many instances, turn out to be considerably informative.

Large as the available Sanskrit and allied Literature is, numerous works and authors still remain unknown except through citations in available works and such works have yet to be unearthed. The incorporation, as much as possible, of references to such lost works and authors whose works have been lost was considered necessary; and it would be a great help in the sphere of Oriental Research. Dr. Aufrecht's Catalogus Catalogorum itself has incorporated, in some cases, such works and authors known from citations; and the present endeavour is to carry out this part of the work more thoroughly and in a more systematic manner.

It was suggested that the New Catalogus Catalogorum should ignore all the old catalogues or lists of manuscripts such as Oppert's lists of manuscripts in South India, Rice's Mysore List, the Oudh lists, the N.W. Provinces lists, and old lists or catalogues of collections which have now been recatalogued in a new form, descriptive or otherwise. This suggestion could not be accepted. Sometimes an old catalogue gives more or better information. Hence, in this New Catalogus Catalogorum, the number of entries under a manuscript will not be also the number of manuscripts of that work available. To the same manuscript as noticed in an old list, as described in a new catalogue and as critically examined in a special article in some journal, there is bound to be more than one reference. Further, in the same collection there have been losses, and a new catalogue does not have some names found in an old list of the same collection. But since, as in the case of works and authors known through citations only, the mere knowledge of a work or manuscript having existed is valuable, no old list or catalogue could be thrown away. For the same reason, lists of provisional surveys of manuscripts such as the Oudh and N.W. Provinces lists could not be ignored.

It was also suggested that references to manuscripts in constituted and accessible libraries should be separated from references to manuscripts in private and inaccessible personal possessions. For more than one reason, this has not been done. As has been said with reference to the separation of works and authors, the adoption of this suggestion would increase the number of volumes and render reference work more cumbrous. Further, constituted libraries with published catalogues there are, which may be inaccessible; and private collections there are, which may be easily accessible.

An important feature of the plan of work is that there should be no entry without adequate reference for verification. Under each work, the plan is to enter one or more important editions, if it is printed, and note any valuable point of textual criticism that has been made, as for instance, under AGNI-PURĀṆA in this provisional fasciculus. The most important entry under an author, besides the entry of his works, will be his date, if it can be determined exactly or approximately. One noteworthy change in giving the references in this New Catalogus Catalogorum is that all the references under a manuscript are arranged alphabetically.

When referring to printed lists and catalogues, mere indexes of names are referred to by the pages, the total number of the manuscripts of each work being indicated within brackets; and in the case of descriptive catalogues, the references are to the catalogue numbers. Where a work is incidentally referred to in a descriptive catalogue, and not described, it is given with a page-reference only. 'a.'=author. 'c.'=commentary. 'cc.'=super-commentary. 'q.'=quoted. 'ref.'=referred to. 'fr.'=fragment. 'inc.'=incomplete. 'an.'=anonymous. 'col.'=colophon. Such abbreviations will be self-evident.

The additional catalogues used for this New Catalogus Catalogorum are given in a separate list with the abbreviations used for them. In the portion fixed for this provisional fasciculus, 'A' to 'An', the number of articles in the four parts of the three volumes of Dr. Aufrecht's Catalogus Catalogorum is 303, omitting the repetitions. The number for the corresponding portion in the New Catalogus Catalogorum is 757. Care has been taken to check entries by cross-references and by securing extracts from the manuscripts through the Curators of Libraries as far as possible and to the extent to which the courtesy and co-operation of libraries have been forthcoming. In this provisional fasciculus, in estimating the improvement in the New Catalogus Catalogorum over the Catalogus Catalogorum of Dr. Aufrecht, it would be useful to pay particular attention to the articles, AMŚUMAT, AKHAṆḌĀNANDAS, AGASTYA, AGASTYA PAṆḌITA, AGASTYA SAMHITĀ, AGNI PURĀṆA AND AGNIHOTRA BHATṬA.

The stupendous cultural task which the Madras University has undertaken in its scheme to produce and publish a complete and up-to-date New Catalogus Catalogorum of Sanskrit and allied works and authors, it is needless to point out, depends largely for its successful accomplishment on the co-operation of scholars and authorities in charge of manuscript collections. It would be highly gratifying to note here that such co-operation has already been forthcoming, in a considerable measure, as the numerous lists and catalogues of manuscripts, which the Catalogus Catalogorum Office has received these two years, would show. Many more scholars and authorities in charge of manuscript libraries have promised to send lists or catalogues. To these, the gratitude of the Madras University is due. To such scholars and institutions as have not so far responded to my requests, I take this opportunity to appeal again, respectfully, for co-operation in all possible ways.

CATALOGUES, LISTS ETC. USED IN THE NEW CATALOGUS CATALOGORUM, WITH THE ABBREVIATIONS USED FOR THEM

All the catalogues and lists used by Dr. Aufrecht in his 3 Volumes of the Catalogus Catalogorum are kept here also with the same abbreviations, with the following few changes:—

Mack: Now referred to by the page numbers of Wilson's Catalogue.

Hlz: This now refers to Part III also of the Report of Sanskrit Mss. in South India by E. Hultzsch, 1905, Madras.

IO: Aufrecht's references to manuscript numbers are now replaced by the catalogue numbers according to the India Office Catalogue, Pt. I. by J. Eggeling. IO now refers also to Pt. II. in two Vols. of the India Office Sanskrit and Prākṛt Manuscripts Catalogue by Dr. A. Berriedale Keith, with a supplement—Buddhist Manuscripts—by Prof. F. W. Thomas.

Bik: Aufrecht's references to page numbers in the Bikaner catalogue have been replaced by manuscript numbers in the catalogue.

Ulwar: Now spelt Alwar.

Jones & Ashburner: The entries against these two names in Aufrecht are now accompanied by the numbers within brackets of the manuscripts of those collections, as catalogued in "The Catalogue of two collections of Sanskrit Manuscripts preserved in the India Office Library, by C. H. Tawney & F. W. Thomas," London 1903.

Hpr: This now refers to Part III also of the Notices of Sanskrit Mss., Second Series, by Mm. Haraprasad Sastri, 1907.

L: Now refers also to the XI Vol. of the Notices of Mss. Published under orders of the Govt. of Bengal Calcutta, 1895, by Haraprasad Sastri. Contains an Introductory Report and an Index. Aufrecht uses this in Vol. III with the abbreviation "Hr. Notices Vol. XI. Pref."

Cs: now refers to the 10 volumes of the Calcutta Sanskrit College Manuscripts Catalogue.

Whish: Ms. Numbers given against this name by Aufrecht are given now with the catalogue numbers in Winternitz's Catalogue also. The last number in Winternitz's Catalogue is 215. Nos. 216 and 221-226 are Whish Additions, notes on which were supplied by the Secretary, R. A. S., London and by Dr. L. D. Barnett.

References to the Saduktikarnāmṛta are now to Mm. Rāmāvatāra Śarma's edition of that anthology in full, with an Introduction by Dr. Hur Dutt Sharma, in the Punjab Oriental Series, No. 15. 1933, and references to the Śārngadharapaddhati are now to Dr. Peterson's edition of the same and not to Dr. Aufrecht's analysis of the same in the ZDMG 27.

The following is a list of the new catalogues and lists of manuscripts in alphabetical order, with their abbreviations, as used in this New Catalogus Catalogorum:

Adyar: A catalogue of the Sanskrit manuscripts in the Adyar Library, in two parts by the Pandits of the Library. A mere index of names.

Adyar Add: refers to manuscripts in the Adyar Library added subsequent to the publication of Part II of the Adyar Catalogue; a mere index of names, available in the Library; not yet printed.

NEW CATALOGUS CATALOGORUM

अंशत्रयीविचार mīm. MD. 4397. Conjectural title of a fr. of a c. on the Bhāṭṭadīpikā, beginning near I. ii. i; not Śambhubhaṭṭa's Prabhāvalī, not Vāñcheśvara's Bhāṭṭacintāmaṇi, not Bhāskararāya's Bhāṭṭacandrikā or Bhā. candrodaya.

अंशदशा jy. Rice p. 28. Cf. Amśakadaśā Whish p. 286.

अंशनाडीफल (केरलीय) jy. Mysore I. p. 342.

[अंशप्रकाशिका] name of a c. on the Viṣṇupurāṇa by Nilāmbara, ASB. V, 3523.] This is a wrong title; the divisions of the Viṣṇup. are called 'Amśas' and this c. is called only 'Prakāśikā'.

अंशफल jy. consequences of birth in the 12 Amśas of the different Lagnas. MD. 13599.

अंशबलि jy.-dh. propitiatory rites for averting the evils concomitant with any Amśa of a man's Rāsi. MD. 3228.

अंशलग्नदशभुक्तिनिरूपण jy. on finding out the Lagna and the planetary periods and sub-periods. MD. 13600.

अंशावतरण on the partial incarnations of Viṣṇu; also on the origins of the heroes and demons of mythology; in 95 verses; title in the first verse 'Amśāveśāvatāraṇa'.

By Nārāyaṇa paṇḍita, son of Trivikrama paṇḍita.

IO. 7047. Mysore I, p. 503.

Edn. Madhva Vilas Book Depot, Kumbakonam.

अंशुघर poet. Skm. pp. 12. 53.

अंशुबोधिनीशास्त्र ascribed to sage Bharadvāja; said to have been revealed to T. Subbarāya Śāstrin of Bangalore; deals with Physics and allied scientific subjects including Telegraphy etc.; apocryphal and very modern; T. Subbarāya Śāstrin mentions in his preface 16 other treatises like this;

the basic text is ascribed to Bharadvāja; a gloss on it is said to be by a Bodhānanda sarasvatī.

Ch. I of this work with an Eng. transl. pub. from Bangalore, 1931.

अंशुमत् Amśumat, Amśumatkalpa, Amśumadbhedā, Amśumattantra (see below), Amśumānakalpa—all these refer to the same text, one of the 28 Śaiva Āgamas (MD.5420. IO. 6085.6113.), dealing with, among other things, Temple-Architecture, Iconography and Consecration; the Kāśyapamata, Kāśyapaśilpa and the Amśumatkāśyapiya (see next entry) again are not different from this. Ānandāśrama Edn. No. 95, Kāśyapaśilpa, in 88 chs., is the same. P. K. Ācārya, however, wrongly takes each of these as separate in his Dict. of Hindu Architecture, pp. 750. 756-9;

Aufrecht's Amśumadbhedasaṅgraha, Vedānta, ascribed to Kāśyapa, Oppert 5875, is evidently a wrong description of an epitome of the Śilpa portion of the Amśumadbhedāgama.

Said to have been a contemporary of the Rāṣtrakūṭa Śubhatuṅga or Kṛṣṇarāja I, first half of the 8th cent.; was a priest at Śra-vaṇabelgola; defeated the Bauddhas at the court of a Pallava King of Kāñci named He(Hi)maśītala and drove the Bauddhas to Kandy in Ceylon. See MD. XI. p. 3977. Epi. Car. II. Insc. 67. "In the 8th cent. again, Akalaṅka went from Śra-vaṇabelgola in Mysore to the Buddhist College at Ponataga in the North Arcot Dt. for study." Epi. Car. VI. Intro. p. 30. On Hemaśītala's probable identity with Hiraṇyavarman, father of Nandivarman Pallavamalla, see Journal of the Madras University I. ii. Sup. p. 41. There is a Kanarese work, Himaśītala-kathe, giving his story. Mysore Arch. Rep. 1908. p. 68; in a Skr. work called Bhuvanapradīpikā written in 1808, Himśītala is mentioned among Jain kings of Kāñci as having ruled from Kali 1125 and that in his reign Ak. confuted the Bauddhas.

Rice: Intro. to his Edn. of the Kārṇāṭaka-śabdānuśāsana, pp. 24-5, says that according to Jain tradition, Akalaṅka defeated the Bauddhas at Kāñci in A.D. 855.

Epi. Car. II, p. 84: "Akalaṅkacarita, a small Skr. work, gives Vik. 700 as the year in which Ak. defeated the Bauddhas at Kāñci." On Akalaṅka-traditions at Tiruppanamūr, 12 miles from Kāñci, see Madras Museum Bulletin, III, Tirupparuttikunṅam and its Temples, 1937, p. 42.

Peterson, II, p. 79: according to a Dig. Kathakośa, Akalaṅka and Niṣkalaṅka were the two sons of King Śubhatuṅga of Mānyakheta, i.e. Kṛṣṇarāja, the Rāṣtrakūṭa King, A.D. 753-755 A.D. Akalaṅka then became a monk.

In Akalaṅka's Tattvārthabhāṣya we find a verse calling him son of a King, Laghu Habva (लघुहब्वनृपतिवर्तनयः)

According to Nemidatta's Ārādhana-kathakośa, Akalaṅka was the son of Puruṣottama, a Brahmin minister of King Śubhatuṅga of Mānyakheta.

The Kanarese work Rājāvalikathe, 8th section, gives the story of Akalaṅka and Himaśīṭala. Here father given as an Arhaddvija and brother Niṣkalaṅka; studied under a Bauddha named Bhagavaddāsa; fought the Śaivas at Sudhāpura.

In some edns. of the Akalaṅkastotra, a Jinadāsa is given as Ak.'s father. Br. Mu. Ptd. Bks. 1906-28. Col. 31-32.

Insc. 35 Nagar, Mysore. Rice, Mysore and Coorg from Insc. p. 199. Upādhye, Annals BORI, XIII., pp. 161-170, suggests that this Ak. sūtra is either Ak.'s kārīkās in his Siddhivinīścaya or Ak.'s Pramāṇasaṅgrahasūtras. S. C. Vidyābhūṣaṇa, p. 37. Mid. Logic, mentions Anantavīrya as having commented on Ak.'s Nyāyavinīścaya which is doubted by Upādhye.

अकलङ्कस्तोत्र or अकलङ्काष्टक Jain stotra. The information in MD. 9424 that this is a Stotra in praise of Akalaṅka himself, the logician, and that in IO. 7600 that it is on Śiva are wrong. The Stotra is on Arhan who is said to be the real Śiva (Maṅgala), the real Viṣṇu (Vyāpaka) and so on. Keith's surmise under IO. 7600 that, in MD. 9424, there are a Śivastotra and an Akalaṅkastotra, is also wrong.

अकालजलद Poet; great-grandfather of Rājaśekhara. Bālarāmāyaṇa, Prastāvanā, Śl. 13. See also Peterson's Intro. to Sbhv. p. 102.

Śp. 777 and Sbhv. 843: the same verse given over the names 'Akālalajada' and 'Dākṣiṇātya', from which Akālalajada appears to have been a southerner: there is a tradition that Rājaśekhara hailed from the South.

'Akālalajada' is not the real name of the poet; it was given to him for the expression 'Akālalajada' in the third line of the verse Śp. 777. Sbhv. 843:

तस्मिन् शुक्लसरत्यकालजलदेनागत्य तच्चेष्टितम् ।

According to an eulogistic verse on Akālalajada by Rājaśekhara found in the Sūktimuktāvali of Jalhaṇa, a poet named Kādambarīrāma used Akālalajada's verses in his drama and became famous as a dramatist:

अक्षरचूडामणि misc. jy.-tantra. Bühler. 551. D. p. 60 IO. 6093. Kh. 118.

As Keith points out under IO. 6093, the description of this as a Jain Śvet. work, or as a work on Jain dharma in Bühler, D., and Kh. is wrong. To this same mistake is due the entry of this title on p. 366 of the Jaina-granthāvalī.

The authority for the title 'Akṣaracūḍāmaṇi' which Keith also adopts, is however lacking. Keith's extracts of colophons in IO. 1063 give the title of the work as 'Cūḍāmaṇisāra'.

In fact, this work is identical with the Cūḍāmaṇisāra, jy., by Bhaṭṭa Lakṣmaṇa, occurring in Auf. CC. II and III, and from which Alwar, p. 176, gives extracts (no. 475). The text corresponds with that of IO. 6093, though the former has a different benedictory verse and three more preliminary verses.

col. here: इत्यखण्डादर्शीये व्यवहारकाण्डः । beginning here: धर्मकाण्डश्चित्तितः पूर्वमखण्डेन ।
अयात्र(त्रा)खण्डेन व्यवहारः क्रियते ।
Mysore I. p. 93 has 3 mss. of this work, one of which is called Akhaṇḍānandīya suggesting thereby Akhaṇḍānanda as the a.

The work is q. as Akhandādarśa and the a. is cited as Akhaṇḍadarśakāra. See Smṛtimuktāphala I, Gharpure's Edn. p. 186. See below under Akhaṇḍānandīya also.

Adyar 20-D-82 (not noticed in the catalogue). This ms. has the first Maṅgalaśloka given below from the Mysore ms. and then gives a text containing only the quoted verses without the author's remarks. MD. 3207. Mysore I. p. 93 (3 mss.).

All these mss. contain only the Vyavahārakāṇḍa.

The following beginning and col. are from a Mysore ms.

Beg.: योगिहृत्पद्मनिलयं लयसर्गावनेश्वरम् ।

हरिं हरितपत्राभं वन्दे वन्द्यं सुरोत्करैः ॥

धर्मकाण्डस्थितः पूर्वमखण्डेनाण्डमण्डकः ।

व्यवहारकाण्डः क्रियते मया पण्डितसंमतः ॥

Col.: इत्यखण्डादर्शये व्यवहारकाण्डे प्रकीर्णकम् ।

अखण्डानन्दः (रामायणविचारः) name of work; an an. disquisition on Rāma as the only Supreme Being denoted by the word Brahman. There is a gloss on the text of which also the a. is not known; possibly the text and the gloss are both by the same writer. Mysore I. p. 146.

अखण्डानन्द adv. writer; pupil of Akhaṇḍānubhūti.

—Pañcapādikāvivarāṇatattvadīpana.

In the intro. verses in his Tattvadīpana, Akhaṇḍānanda salutes Ānandagiri in two verses, and again in one verse at the beginning of the fifth Varṇaka, as Bodhapṛthvīdhara, Ānandaśaila and Bodhaśaila and refers to 'Ratnācala' as Ānandagiri's birthplace.

Ānandagiri (also Ānandajñānagiri) is assigned to the latter half of the 13th cent.

Nothing is known of the Akhaṇḍānanda or Akhaṇḍānandas who wrote these works. Kane, HDS. I, p. 678a, takes Akh., a. of the Mahāviṣṇupūjāpaddhati, as being identical with the a. of the Tattvadīpana, the pupil of Akhaṇḍānubhūti; no evidence.

अखण्डानन्दसरस्वती Teacher of Kṛṣṇānandayati, a. of Brahmatattvasubodhini. MD. 15493. MT. 1784 (a).

अखण्डानन्दसरस्वती or अख. यति different from the a. of the Tattvadīpana, the pupil of Akhaṇḍānubhūti; was the pupil of Svayamprakāśa sarasvatī; as a householder had the name Raṅganātha; belonged to the Nalagantu family and was the son of Kālahastiyajvan (Advaitaratnakośavyā, and Bhedadhikkāravivṛti) and Yajñāmbikā; then became a Sannyāsin; was patronised by Immadi Jagadekarāya, 1540-90, chief of Chennapatna in Mysore and a subordinate of Aliya Rāmārāja, Tirumala, Śrī Raṅga and Veṅkaṭarāya of Vijayanagar.

I p. 1b refers to Taylor I. 26 for a Tarkabhāṣāprakāśavyā, by Akhaṇḍānanda and on p. 225b, Auf. gives it as a supergloss on Govardhana's c. on the Tarkabhāṣā. Taylor has: "Tarkabhāṣavyākhyānam, a prose c. on an ancient work entitled Tarkabhāṣya. By Akhaṇḍānanda yeti." Both of these statements are wrong. The ms. in Taylor is really the direct c. of Akhaṇḍānanda on the T. Bhāṣā.

Sage Agastya figures as an interlocutor in several Purāṇas and similar works as a result of which, portions of works narrated by him, become current as his works. The following is a list of the texts in which he is thus found as an interlocutor:

(a) Vihagendrasaṁhitā. MD. 7510. 7520. TD. 15337 is wrong in ascribing the Vihagendrasaṁhitā itself to Agastya. In Pāñcarātra literature, the Vihagendra and the Agastya are two different Saṁhitās. See enumeration of the Pāñcarātra texts in the Pādmatantra IO. Eggeling p. 848 b.

(b) Basavapurāṇa. MD. 2349.

According to Skr. Coll. Ben. 1906, p. 7, this Citrakūṭamāhātmya occurs in the Śaṇḍilya-Bhusuṇḍī-saṁvāda in the Bṛhadrāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki.

On the basis of Śl. 60 (p. 66. Bālamano-ramā edn.) of the Pratāparudrayaśobhūṣaṇa, some scholars hold that Vidyānātha and Agastya are identical. See J. Myth. Soc. X. p. 383. For a refutation of this theory, see J. Myth. Soc. XI. 1931 p. 286.

अगस्त्यसंहिता (सुतीक्ष्ण-अगस्त्य-संवाद) a dialogue between sages Sutikṣṇa and Agastya within which occurs a Pārvaṭī-Śiva-samvāda; described as a Pāñcarātra text with the attribute 'Paramarahasya'; deals with the worship of Rāma, Sītā, Lakṣmaṇa and Hanumān.

This is the text q. by Hemādri and other Nibandhakāras on the Rāmanavamīvrata; q. by Hemādri in Vrata, I, pp. 942-6; Nilakaṇṭha in Samayamayūkha, Gharpure's edn. pp. 35, 36, 48; in the Bhaktirasāmṛta-sindhu, IO. Eggeling p. 100b; in the Viṣṇupūjāpaddhati, BBRAS. 876; in the Kāmbojaparakāśa, BBRAS. 1149; by Govindānanda in his Varṣakriyākaumudī and Śuddhikaumudī; and by Raghunandana in his Tithi, Ekādaśī and Malamāsa tattvas.

There is no evidence to suppose that this text forms part of the Skānda, though the Vaiṣṇavakhaṇḍa and the Brahmakhaṇḍa of the Venk. Press edn. of the Skānda contain some Rāma-material (Ayodhyāmāhātmya and Setumāhātmya). Cf. above notes under Agastya — Citrakūṭamāhātmya. Agastya's connection with Rāma is seen even in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the Valmiki-Rāmāyaṇa, where Agastya figures as the narrator of the stories.

For a note on and analysis of this Agastyasamhitā, see JBORS, XXII. pt. ii. pp. 111-115.

In Oudh V. 28, this text is found as Śiva-samhitā, sports of Rāmacandra, by Agastya, evidently because of Śiva delivering the whole text to Pārvaṭī. Auf. CC. I. p. 653b. puts this wrongly under Śivasamhitā, yoga.

Pandit Kuñjavihārī's ASB list notices an ASB. ms. of the Ag. sam., but Hpr's Des. Cat., ASB. V, notices only one fr. of the Ag. sam., No. 4161, in the ASB—Jānakistavarāja. The Purāṇa vol. of the Cs. does not notice an Ag. Sam.

अगस्त्यसंहिता a Pāñcarātra text divided into Paṭalas and different from the Sutikṣṇa-Agastya-samvāda. MD. 5191.

R. A. Sastri IV. p. 259 mentions an Ag. sam. in 32 Paṭalas in Śrīraṅgam (?)

MT. 352 is a collection of Pāñcarātra samhitās which contains an extract from an Ag. sam., chs. 8-17.

MT. 2856 is a collection of Pāñcarātra-pūjā texts containing two extracts from an Ag. sam., on Pavitrārōpaṇa and Tantrasamskārabhedha.

MT. 1343c Bharadvājasamhitā, mentions an Ag. sam. as one of the 108 Pāñcarātra texts.

MT. 2996 a collection called Prāyaścittapaṭala; contains extracts of three chs. on Prāyaścitta from on Ag. sam. (chs. 9, 10, 11).

अगस्त्यसंहिता another name of the Sāṅkarī or Śaṅkara-samhitā, forming the third part of the Skāndapurāṇa, not to be found in the Veṅk. Press Edn., which is divided into khaṇḍas.

This is the Agastyasamhitā of which the Hālāsyamāhātmya is said to be a part; the text on Ratnaparikṣā ascribed to Agastya forms part of this Hālāsyamāhātmya of the Agastyasamhitā. See IO. Eggeling pp. 1320a. 1321a. 1363b.-4a. 1378a.

It is doubtful, if the Agastyasamhitā dealing with Rāma-worship and said, without any evidence however, to form part of the Skānda, is a section of this Agastyasamhitā or Śaṅkarasamhitā. See also Winternitz. IIIL. I. p. 572.

अगस्त्यसंहिता part of a Paraśurāmāyaṇa (on the analogy of the Rāmāyaṇa) which concerns Paraśurāma and gives the mythological history of Kerala.

IO. Keith. p. 969b. MD. 2393. (One of cols. here describes this Agastyasamhitā as a part of the Brahmāṇḍapurāṇa. The Veṅk Press Edn. of the Brahmāṇḍapurāṇa, no doubt, contains the story of Paraśurāma, but not in this manner or with these titles. MT. 894 (here assigned to the Viṣṇurahasya section of the Bhūgola-khaṇḍa, of the Āgneyapurāṇa (?) of the Paraśurāmāyaṇa.) Whish. 147 (see esp. the col. here from f. 155.)

अगस्त्यसंहिता is extracted in MD. 5772, Puraścaraṇādīprayoga, on Puraścaraṇa. The 'Sutikṣṇa-Agastya-samvāda' Agastya Samhitā deals with Puraścaraṇa in ch. 16.

The Agnip., one of the 18 Mahāp.s., is different from the Upap., called by the same name or by the name Vahnip., for the text of which see IO. 3582-3.

Many of the Māhātmyas purporting to form part of it do not occur in any of the full mss. of the Agnip. (See Wint. HIL. I, p. 566).

The Agnip. itself gives its extent as 12000 Śls. (ch. 272, 10-11); the Bhāgavata, the Brahmaparivarta and the Pādma give it 15400 Śls.; the Skānda and the Matsya, 16000; Bk. (p. 183) says nine mss. contain 11000 and the tenth ms. 12500 Śls.; the Ānandāśrama Edn. has 383 chs. and 11457 Śls.

Hazra, IHQ. XII, pp. 683-689 says that the present Agnip. is a recast of an earlier and original Agnip. which is the text described by the Matsya and the Skānda, and q. by some smṛti writers.

अग्निवेश disciple of Ātreya-Punarvasu; the Carakatantra or C. saṃhita, med., is ascribed to him. See JRAS. 1908 pp. 997-8.

—Agniveśatantra, the original of the Carakasamhitā.

—Agniveśasamhitā. This is evidently the Carakasamhitā. Bl. 8 (with c.) D. p. 45 (with Bhāṣya).

—Añjananidāna. med. Mukhopādhyāya, HH. Med. III, pp. 526-7, doubts Agniveśa's authorship of this work.

—Carakasamhitāṭikā. SB. 284. IO. Ptd. Bks. II. i. 1897. p. 51. Calcutta Edn. 1883. This ascription of a c. on Caraka to Agniveśa seems to be wrong.

—Nidānasthāna. med. The only ref. to such a work is NW. 586. Mukhopādhyāya, HH. Med. III, gives this as a work separate from the Añjananidāna relying evidently on NW. and Auf. CC. Is this, however, the same as Añjananidāna? BORI. List p. 54 has 'Añjanagrantha and Nidāna' mentioned separately. Mukhopādhyāya says further that Nidānasthāna is also called Netrāñjana: further, section II of the Carakasamhitā, which is sometimes ascribed to Agniveśa himself, is called Nidānasthāna.

On the Rāmāyaṇa, there are two short works ascribed to an Agniveśa, one in about 100 Śārdūlavikrīḍita verses, and another in 58 to 64 Anuṣṭubhs. There is no third work on Rāmāyaṇa ascribed to Agniveśa, though these two works are known by a variety of names:

—Agniveśarāmāyaṇa (very common), Āgnīdhra-rāmāyaṇasāra (MD. 12736), Rāmācandracaritrasāra (Oxf. 121b), Rāmāyaṇasāra (very common), Śataśloki-rāmāyaṇa (very common) Rāmāyaṇasamayādarśa (edn. Benares 1885), Samayanirūpaṇarāmāyaṇa (edn. Bombay 1900). For other mss. see under Rāmāyaṇasāra.

—Rāmāyaṇarahasya Auf. CC. I, 514a. ASB. V, 3179. CPB. 4755. L. 2663. TD. 9488-91. Rāmājātaka is the same as this Rāmāyaṇarahasya.

अग्निवेशतन्त्र med. Ind. Ant. Vol. 14, Sup. p. 63. Bower Ms. Mukhopādhyāya, HH. Med. III, p. 520. The Agniveśatantra was redacted into the Carakasamhitā by Caraka. ibid. p. 521: "Śrikanthadatta (1288 A.D.), disciple of Vijayarakṣita (1240 A.D.) and the commentator of Vṛnda's Siddhayoga (in his Vyākhyākusumāvali) cites ślokas from Agniveśatantra which are not found in the Carakasamhitā".

अग्निवेशरामायण see under Rāmāyaṇasāra.

अग्निवेशसंहिता med. evidently the Carakasamhitā. BL. 8 (and c.). BORI. 66 of 1872-73. D. p. 45 (with Bhāṣya). (All the 3 entries refer to the same ms.).

अग्निवेश्य wrote on elephantology; mentioned by Śivarāmabhūpati in his elephantological work, Kalpanāratna, MT. 3791.

अग्निवेश्यगृह्य one of the 18 gṛhyasūtras mentioned by Āpastamba in his Smṛti. Śg. II, p. 7; q. by Hārīta Veṅkaṭācārya in his Smṛtiratnākara (edn. Lakṣmī Veṅkaṭeśvara Press, Kalyān, अग्निवेश्यसूत्र q. twice by Hārīta Veṅkaṭācārya in his Smṛtiratnākara, p. 73. See J. of Ori. Res., Madras Uni., I, p. 18. Is this identical with the previous?

अग्निवैकृतशान्ति according to Garga. An extract. Observances like dāna etc. to avoid fire-accidents in a city or country. Burnell 149a. TD. 13436 (Same ms. as the previous).

अग्निशतद्वयी PUL. I, p. 36.

अग्निशर्मन् Belvalkar, Sys. of Skr. Gr. p. 64. fn. 4. gives this as an alias of Īśvarakṛṣṇa, author of the Sāṅkhyakārikā on the basis of the Jainendravākyakarnasūtra III. 3. 134. शरद्वत् शुनक etc. and the Amoghavṛtti II. 4.36. Śākaṭāyanavyākaraṇa. But see Pāṭhak, Ind. Ant. 1914. Oct. pp. 210-211. "आग्निशर्मणो वर्षगण्यः" This shows that Vārṣaganya is a descendent of Agniśarman. Pāṭhak and Belvalkar take Vārṣaganya as another name of Īśvarakṛṣṇa. Belvalkar seems to be wrong in taking Agniśarman as an alias of Vārṣaganya.

अघोरशिवाचार्य a Śaiva writer; disciple of Vidyākaṇṭha, the disciple of Rāmakaṇṭha who was the son of Nārāyaṇakaṇṭha and disciple of Utpala (Hz. II, Extr. p. 109); wrote the Mrgendravṛttidīpikā at the instance of this Guru; Sarvātmaśiva is usually mentioned as his chief Guru; was born in the Cola country in the Kaṇḍinyagotra; had the title 'Lakṣadvayādhyāpaka', 'teacher of 2 lakhs of pupils'; mentioned sometimes as Ghoraśiva also; mentions at the end of the Kriyākramadyotikā that he wrote it in Śaka 1080, A.D. 1157. See p. 4 Skr. Intro. to the Chidambaram Grantha edn. of 1927 of the Kriyākramadyotikā in part.

According to Trilocanaśivācārya (Prāyaścittasamuccaya, Hz. 954), Aghoraśivācārya was one of the spiritual heads of the mythical seat called Āmardakamaṭha. (Hz. II, p. 80. Extr.).

q. in the Śaiva section (as a commentator on Bhoja's Tattvapraśāsa) in the Sarvadarśanaśaṅgraha.

A traditional version of his story is found in a work called Cidambarasāra. See Tamil Preface to the above-mentioned edn. of the Kriyākramadyotikā. This preface and the Skr. Intro. referred to previously give a list of Aghoraśivācārya's works which form the only source of information for works marked with an asterisk below.

Text has agreement with the text of the Āṅgirassmṛti, ed. in the Smṛti Collection, Ānandāśrama, 48, though the verses here are only half as many as those in the Ānandāśrama text.

अङ्गिरस्समृति found in versions of different length to which cause perhaps are to be attributed the names, Madhyama Āṅgiras and Bṛhad Āṅgiras. 'Āṅgiras' q. by numberless writers. Bṛhad Āṅgiras, Peters III, 386 (Āṅgirā bṛhatsmṛti) BORI. 81 of 1884-86. Madhyamāṅgiras q. by Govindārṇava, Prāyaścitta, IO. 1566, pp. 24b. 82a, in Prāyascittamayūkha, by Vijñāneśvara Oxf. 356a, in the Madanaratnapradīpa. Called also Āṅgirasadharmaśāstra and Āṅgirassamhitā; in some mss., available in two parts, Purvāṅgīrasa and Uttarāṅgīrasa, the latter being a text in 12 chs. But in all versions deals only with Prāyaścittas; hence, the Ātura-sannyāśavidhi and Saṁskāraavidhi ascribed to Āṅgīrasa in IO. 5576. would suggest a totally different Āṅgiras text to be existent.

On Āṅgiras see Kane, HDS. I, Section 39. The work deals only with Prāyascittas; q. Āṅgiras, Śaṅkhalikhitau, Sumantu; contains some verses of Manu.
